

Partnership

Partnership is identified mostly as a term for business, as we refer to those whom with we've chosen to collaborate our affairs. However, by definition, it regards those in every aspect of our lives whom with we choose to move side-by-side for a particular purpose.

Stepping in synch with another can be tricky, considering every move brings two minds, dual view points and double the opinions. Each line of thinking processes a multitude of thoughts that can produce separate conclusions. Despite the distinct parts, true partnership recognizes two moving in the same direction.

Collaboration of thought in one direction produces great power. Inspired through synergy, in true partnership a third power is born. When we realize our own personal strengths and allow the strength of another we welcome the opportunity to create miraculous results.

“If two or three persons should come with a high spiritual aim and with great powers, the world would fall into their hands like a ripe peach.”

~Ralph Waldo Emerson

We all feel stronger when we have someone in our corner. Whether they're cheering us on or it's a silent cooperative it gives a sense of validation and worthiness. The alliance proves our efforts are purposeful. When there's partnership there's also an element of “team,” which creates greater enthusiasm.

Accountability can be responsible for the success of many and through a partnership for any endeavor it's automatic. Being accountable is very motivating and can cause additional drive for one to prove them self proficient.

The key ingredient to a true partnership is those partnered must be moving in the same direction, one overall mission and a single agenda of the big picture. Most partnerships do begin this way. However, maintaining this goal can prove challenging. It takes endurance of selflessness to sustain, a concern for the overall mission and ability to keep your eye on the truth for future greatness.

Every one of my clients, without exception, recognizes how the coach/client partnership makes a powerful impact toward what they desire for their future. It's a privilege to see clients feeling confident, worthy and purposeful. They recognize synergy, truly two coming together for a single agenda producing miraculous results. They become incredibly enthusiastic for their greatest potential and opportunities.

“If we are together nothing is impossible. If we are divided all will fail.”
Winston Churchill

Individually we are limited to some degree. None of us were designed to move through this journey singled out. If you own a business, you must realize how important this is for your success. Considering with whom you've partnered in your endeavors can give you an indication as to the verity of your success and determine the end result of every project.

Finding partnership is as simple as establishing someone that believes in you and what you are working towards. They must hold a positive space for that agenda. This may sound easier than it is. Many people do not allow themselves to hold a positive environment even for themselves, let alone another individual. So, it can be tricky, yet is crucial for superior growth.

The question one needs to answer is; do you want superior growth? Every successful person realizes how partnership whether it's a coach, a dynamic business partner or a mentor can increase results and take business and life to a new level. Ask yourself, “How far do I want to go?”

This week, be a partner!

- Find a project, a person or an agenda that you can truly partner with, believe for and match the energies to move it forward.
- Being a partner requires you to speak and work toward the truth.
- Partnership mandates a win-win in every endeavor. Both involved must win in the final outcome.

- Being a diehard fan is a partner's largest responsibility. Even when the evidence isn't visible, belief and motivation can dispel doubt and catapult change for expansion.
- Open and honest communication with the greater goals in mind is a necessity. There is no like-mindedness without communication.
