Marzia Frozen is pleased to announce an international group exhibition of a new generation of artists working today. This will be a group exhibition at KINDL-BREWERY in Berlin, and it will feature a selection of paintings, sculptures, photographs, performances, and works on paper

Today in 2009, Berlin is the cultural capital in Europe, with the most important contemporary German artists living in the city, including Daniel Richter, Jonathan Messe, Andre Butzer, Anselm Reyle, among others. With an abundance of contemporary art galleries, and an intellectual and cool vibe, Berlin is quickly becoming the new contemporary art center in the world after the collapse of American economy in New York. BERLIN ART SHOW 2009 reflects a fresh embodiment of these historical moments twenty years after the fall of the Berlin Wall. This new beginning in contemporary art will be shown with an international group exhibition at Kindl-Brewery in Neukölln.
